This year, the Class of 2017 chose to dedicate the School of Medicine Yearbook to Dr. Jimmy Elder.

Dr. Elder graduated from Mercer University in 1977 with a major in Christianity, a minor in music, and a minor in speech and dramatic arts. In 1979, he received his masters of divinity from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Kentucky. He graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary with a doctor of ministry in 1990 and is currently the Pastor at First Baptist Church in Columbus, Georgia.

Dr. Elder has gone above and beyond the call of duty for Mercer’s medical students. It’s impossible to complete the clinical years of medical education on the Columbus Campus without at least shaking hands with Dr. Elder. The first week of third year orientation, Dr. Elder and his wife, Roxann, graciously host a dinner for the class, inviting other prominent community members to meet the medical students. He opens his schedule to meet students for coffee and his home when students are going through a stressful period of life.

During our two years in Columbus, Dr. Elder has been a pastor, a mentor, and friend to our entire class. His selfless service to others is perpetual and contagious. He has served as a massive student advocate, fostering a collegiate atmosphere through his extensive community involvement. He is one of the biggest reasons why Mercer University School of Medicine has a campus in Columbus, Georgia. Dr. Elder embodies what it means to be a Mercerian through empowering others.

Without a doubt, the students of the Columbus Class of 2017 are better people and physicians today by having the pleasure of knowing this inspiring man. Thank you, Dr. Elder, for creating a home in Columbus for many of us to flourish and thrive!

COMMENCEMENT
COMMENCEMENT
Mercer University’s School of Medicine was established in 1982 to educate physicians and health professionals to meet the primary care and health care needs of rural and medically underserved areas of Georgia. Today, more than 60 percent of graduates currently practice in the state of Georgia, and of those, more than 80 percent are practicing in rural or medically underserved areas of Georgia. Mercer medical students benefit from a problem-based medical education program that provides early patient care experiences. Such an academic environment fosters the early development of clinical problem-solving and instills in each student an awareness of the place of the basic medical sciences in medical practice. The School opened a full four-year campus in Savannah in 2008 at Memorial University Medical Center. In 2012, the School began offering clinical education for third- and fourth-year medical students in Columbus. Following their second year, students participate in core clinical clerkships at the School’s primary teaching hospitals: Medical Center, Navicent Health in Macon; Memorial University Medical Center in Savannah; and The Medical Center and St. Francis Hospital in Columbus. The School also offers master’s degrees in family therapy, preclinical sciences and biomedical sciences and a Ph.D. and Psy.D. in clinical medical psychology.
